

A RETIRED BUSINESS WOMAN.

The important experiences of others are interesting. The following is no exception: "I had been troubled with heart disease 25 years, much of that time very seriously. For five years I was treated by one physician continuously. I was in business, but obliged to retire on account of my health. A physician told my friends that I could not live a month. My feet and limbs were badly swollen, and I was indeed in a serious condition when a gentleman directed my attention to Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, and said that his sister, who had been afflicted with heart disease, had been circd by the remedy, and was again a strong, healthy woman. I purchased a bottle of the Heart Cure, and in less than an hour after taking the first dose I could feel a decided improvement in the circulation of my blood. When I had taken three doses I could move my ankles, something I had not done for months, and my limbs had been swollen so long that they seemed almost putrified. Before I had taken one bottle of the New Heart Cure the swelling had all gone down, and I was so much better that I did my own work. On my recommendation six others are taking this valuable remedy."—Mrs. Mosgan, 609 W. Harrison St., Chicago, Ill.

MEMORIAL SUNDAY.

Hamilton Hall Packed With People at the Sunday Services.

Rev. M. F. McKirahan's memorial sermon was delivered to a packed house at Hamilton hall yesterday afternoon. Long before 3 o'clock the old soldiers, their families and friends began to assemble. Many had to stand up.

The stage were beautifully decorated with flowers, prominent among which were some beautiful magnolias sent here from Memphis, Tenn., the gift of Capt. Joseph Waters.

Rev. Mr. McKirahan's sermon was patriotic in the extreme. He paid a high tribute to the old soldiers and to those who preserved their memory.

Several songs were sung and there was a short address by Chaplain G. W.

THE PULLMAN STRIKE.

Chicago Workingmen to Support the Strikers at Pullman. CHICAGO, May 28 .- In response to a call of the Trades and Labor assembly and the Building Trades council, representatives of the various labor organizations in the city met Sunday to devise ways and means to aid the families of the Pullman strikers.

A number of speeches were made and finally a committee was appointed to solicit subscriptions from the various labor unions. After adopting resolutions condemning the treatment of the Pullman employes the meeting adjourned.

IT COSTS MUCH

To Employ Help For the Attorney General.

Judge M. B. Nicholson of Council Grove, has drawn $525 from the state treasury for assisting the attorney general. Of this sum $500 was paid him for assisting in the prosecution of the M. K. & T. case, and $25 for drawing up complaints in the cases against the Greens-burg bank officials. The money was drawn from the governor's contingent

This makes the office of attorney general a rather costly one to the tax payers. The attorney general receives $2,500 and his assistant $1,600 to attend to the legal interests of the state and aside from this there is a chief clerk who is a lawyer and who draws $1,200.

Judge Nicholson was employed by the governor as an assistant to General Little in the case to compel the M. K. & T to establish headquarters in Kansas and the suit has been compromised without a trial. Still his fee is $500.

The assistant attorney general, Geo. W. Clark, is one of the best lawyers in the state and still outside talent had to be employed to represent the state in a case which never came to trial. This action is hardly consistent with Populistic ideas of economy.

The Three Accused Burglars. It was shown that Grover authorized his clerk to sign his name and Judge Hazen said he was not in the habit of letting men charged with crime go without trial, on such puerile grounds.

THEIR PAY GOES

The Rule to Dock Pay of Congressmen,

Quickly Done Away With by the House.

CONGRESS MAY LOAF

And Draw Pay at the Same Time Now.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—[Special.]— The long discussion and the many contests about the location of various Indian bands are completed at last, the committee on Indian affairs having decided that the reservations of the Osages and Kaws shall be cut off from Oklahoma and given to the Indian Territory. This, it must be noted, transfers the land, leaving the Indians as large an area as they had and correspond-ingly lessens that of Oklahoma. The Osages number about 1,600 and the Kaws not half so many, and their petition to the committee is an interesting document as showing how potent the Indian suspicion of white settlers still is and how far the tribes are from being ready for a state gov-ernment. They set forth that if not transferred before Oklahoma becomes a state they never can be, and that as soon as the state is organized it will begin to legislate so as to destroy their tribal organizations and get their land, and that the United States will not defend them against a state. This transfer completes the location of about all the Indians in the United States, and so far as can be learned leaves them nearly all well satisfied. In every case this session where a tribe or band asked for a transfer-and they have always asked for such transfers as would place them with their kindred tribes—it has been granted, and generally it may be said that the committee has favored the Indian view in every case, except as to granting larger appropriations, and it is suspected that those are generally asked for by white men in the tribe. Except the seeing of its appropriation bill through the house, the work of this committee is practically finished.

It Quickly Filled the Seats. While the bill making appropriation for the legislative, judicial and executive branches was droning its languid way through the house, with two-thirds of the seats empty, the question of members' pay was suddenly sprung, and it was laughable to see how quickly the house waked up and the seats were filled. It will be reembered that a law passed in August, 1856, deducting pay for every day a member was absent except for sickness and requiring him to state the time, was recent ly revived, and many very queer looking statements were filed with the sergeantat-arms. For instance, Breckinridge testified to only a few days' absence for all the weeks he was attending his trial. It was obvious from the start that the custom could not last long, and many claim ed the old law had been repealed by subse quent acts and the revision of 1873-4, the same in which the silver dollar was dropped out. While this legislative bill was up an amendment was offered declaring the law of 1856 no longer in force, and in two minutes the house was on the points of its hoofs. It was no small compliment to Judge Culberson that when he rose to speak all the members crowded to that side, and there was deep silence. He maintained that the law was still in force, but wrong in principle. Chairman Richardson ruled that the amendment was not germane, as it changed existing law. An appeal was taken, and on a rising vote he was sustained, but tellers were demanded. and there was great fun as the absentees were beckened down from the galleries and called in from the committee rooms, the result being that the chairman was overruled. Then came the vote on the amendment, which resulted-yeas, 118; navs. 84. So the act of 1856 was repealed, and the cheering was tremendous.

A Spicy Colloquy. Another amendment was offered provid ing for the deduction of pay in certain cases, and on that Mr. Meyer of Louisiana made a very able speech, maintaining that pay should be deducted only when a member was absent without leave of the house. Mr. Cox of Tennessee wanted a regular Draconian law, and the colloquy between the two was extremely spicy, much to the delight of the members, who were now satisfied that their pay was in no danger. The chairman ruled this amendment out of order, and Mr. Meyer was talking with a member behind him at the time. The clerk had read the next paragraph of the bill before he turned round, and thus cut off his right to appeal from the decision of the chair. He frankly confessed that he had been caught napping and asked unanimous consent to appeal, whereupon the house laughed, coughed and objected till there was a fine uproar And in this legislative act of high comedy the attempt to make members' pay depend on their attendance ended.

More About Coxeyism. If anybody imagines that the retirement of Coxey's army and his trial and conviction would end the racket, his disappointment must be great, for the real bitterness of the affair comes now when all is over. There is an intense feeling that Coxey, Browne and Jones have been very hardly dealt with in receiving sentence of 20 days in jail, and the fact that they had to ride in the common prison van with common vagrants and petty criminals and handcuffed besides was felt to be a needless outrage on their feelings. This class of reasoners maintain that a nominal fine would have been ample for the legal sanction and for the first offense, and that severe pun ishment might have been dealt out to the next offenders. On the other hand, Judge Miller, who sentenced them, and those who sustain him say that the three men came here with expressed intent to violate the law and incite others to do it, and that their punishment was very light. As to the coming armies the officials now make a statement somewhat like that of the old women in the very old story about the borrowed kettle which was broken. They say, first, that none of the coming armies will get here, and, second, that if they do get here they will be arrested en masse under the vagrant law as soon as they cross the District line, and, third, that they will starve anyhow if allowed to go into camp. It is also given out that if Coxey's little squad at Highlands does not dissolve in a few days they will be arrested under the Maryland law and sent to state prison or the workhouse for a few months. In short, our officials say that it was all well enough to let the first band march around just for the fun of it, but the people are getting very tired of such foolishness and demand strong measures.

Some folks say that the people are getting equally tired of the delay in the senate and are bombarding the members by letter. Be that as it may, there is increased activity and no more doubt admitted that the bill will speedily pass.

WEAVER FOR CONGRESS. The Iowa Populist May Move Into the Ninth Iowa District.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, May 28.—As the story goes, Gen. James B. Weaver is to remove from Des Moines to Council Bluffs in a few days, and the main object of the change of residence is to become a resident of the Ninth Congressional district, in order that he may be placed in a position to accept a nomination on the congressional ticket, which he has been assured will be tendered him by the Populists at their convention, which is to be held at an early date.

The Populists held a convention at Atlantic recently and a petition was put in circulation which has thus far covered five of the nine counties of the district. The petition favors Gen. Weaver for congress, and is signed by almost every Populist in the five counties, besides many others. A dispatch from Des Moines in regard to the proposition says Gen. James B.

Weaver said today: "I was informed by a letter received today that the members of labor organizations and many farmers belonging to various farm organizations would attend the convention to be held at Atlantic on the 26th inst. and present a petition to nominate me for congress in that district The letter states that the petition is very numerously signed, and comes from every part of the district. I shall await developments and determine my course when I am fully in possession of the facts. I can not be present at the convention, as I have an engagement elsewhere at that time."

"In case you make the race, do you expect to remove to the Ninth district?" "Of course that would be the proper thing to do, and I should take that course, but that will be considered

Captain Sampson detailed the charges made by Mr. Wallace, a Pittsburg lawyer, representing a half dozen employes of the Carnegie works.

They had gone to Home-stead and had found charges and the evidence substantially similar to that at the first investigation. Mr. Lease Weeps Because of His Wife's Illness.

OTHER STATE NEWS.

The Leavenworth Bridge Company Sued for $21,000.

WICHITA, May 28 .- A Beacon reporter called at the Lease house to inquire about the condition of Mrs. Lease. Charles L. Lease met the reporter at the door and it was plainly seen that he was in great trouble.

"Mrs. Lease is a very sick woman," he said, while the tears came to his eyes. "I only wish she could have got home, but I know she has all the care possible. Here is a letter I received yesterday from her private secretary, stating that her doctor said she was better.

"I hope she will recover soon, but I am greatly concerned for her. Her disease is inflammatory and sciatic rheuma-tism and she has suffered intensely. She has been compelled to take opiates to ease the pain, but I am not alarmed on that account. Her letter yesterday stated that pus was forming in the palm of one hand. So you see she is a very sick woman."

Then Mr. Lease looked out the door sorrowfully toward the children and added: "The last letter I received from my wife was several days ago and was written with her left hand, her right hand then being useless. Since that time I have received letters written by her secretary and attendants."

Mr. Lease spoke of the probability of his going to the bedside of his sick wife and then walked to the secretary and took out a letter which he said was from a friend warning him to look out for his home. He then read another anonymous letter in which he was told that his home would be burned.

"Now, you see," he said, "that I would not trust any one to guard my little chil-dren here. I would all the time be afraid that they would be burned to death in tne house. I will go to my wife, if she is not reported better, and take the children with me and let the house take its chances. I expect to hear this evening from Mrs. Lease and I most sincerely hope and believe the word will come that she is improving.

"We are still getting those anonymous threatening letters. They may be writ-ten by an insane person, and if they are there is all the more danger. I have sometimes thought they were written by some vicious person with the intent of alarming Mrs. Lease and all of us. If that is the intent the writer has certainly succeeded in annoying us exceedingly.'

Mahan referred to the fact that his wife did not testify in his behalf.

The statute provides that the prosecution should not refer to the defendant not going on the stand nor the defendant's wife not going on the stand, neither being compelled to testify in a criminal case of this character. Upon these grounds the verdict was set aside and a new trial granted. It will come up next term and the defendant is put under $4,000 bond for appearance.
